Useful information for Exterior treatments.

Common pathologies on exterior surfaces:

Chalking: Formation of fine powdery residues on the surface of the paint film. Consequence of degradation of the paint surface due to ultraviolet rays.

Microorganisms: The most common are mould, fungi and algae, which form when the humidity and temperature conditions are adequate for its development.

Efflorescence: Soluble salts and other water dispersible materials contained in the substrate that appear on the surface of concrete and mortars due to moisture, condensation, leaks etc. causing stains or paint peeling.

Stains: Consequence of environmental pollution, which deposit on vertical and horizontal surfaces, causing adhesion problems, dirt stains etc. on the surface.

Fissures and cracks: Indication of stresses within the substrate and coating system which it is not sufficiently flexible to withstand. The result of ageing and consequent embrittlement of the system which leads to water ingress and problems of carbonation and humidity.

Treatments:

Check the general condition of the exterior surfaces before starting to paint, giving special attention to identifying any pathologies such as the ones described, and check condition of the existing paint (appearance, adhesion, moisture resistance etc.):

Surface condition: Elimination of poor/loose/flaking masonry material and removal of old paint with poor adhesion/condition. Wash the exterior walls using a pressure washer. Anti-mould treatment, for prevention and cure.

Cracks: Fix/fill cracks using a suitable exterior plaster/putty, prime and finish with a suitable high quality elastomeric coating.
